the Republicans having no speakers. Addresses were made by Robert E. Lee, jr., of Fairfax, and Senator Eugene Withers, of Pittsylvania. With a good deal of the jolly manner of his cousin, Fitzhugh Lee, the younger Bob Lee discussed imperialism, trusts, and militarism, and surprised his audience by the adroitness with which he attacked McKinley and Hanna. Senator Withers made the strongest speech heard here in the campaign in his effort to show how by successive steps the Republican party, first with its financial policy, controlled by trusts, sought to grip with a constantly growing standing Secretary Gage, by their recent public ut-terances, would largely contribute to the chances of Bryan's success.

BODY OF A DEAD SOLDIER

Floated Ashore at Phoebus and Murder special to The Washington Post.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 16.—The body of Artilleryman Amos L. Dysart, of Battery G, Fourth Artillery, floated ashore near Mill Creek Bridge, Phoebus, this morning. While there were no marks of the special three cadet members of the third class—Bradley T. Johnson, jr., grandson of Gen. Bradley T. Johnson; J. E. Schoolfield, of Danville, son of Evangelist Schoolfield, and A. Julian Chian, of Frankfort, Ky., Eephew of Col. Jack Chian. violence on the body, there were indications that the man was murdered. A phy- pending an investigation by the superinsician made an examination and ex-pressed the opinion that Dysart was dead when placed in the water Dysart left the fort Friday on a two days' leave of absence, attired in citizen's such line of procedure farcical in the redays' leave of absence, attired in citizen's clothes. He had a small sum of money when he left. Friday night he was seen in some of the saloons of Phoebus. When found this merning he had only a soft shirt with collar, one cuff, and a pair of drawers. The theory advanced by the police is that he was given a fatal dose of "knock-out" drops, robbed, and the body thrown overboard to hide the crime. The body was badly decomposed.

Dysart enlisted at Evansville, Ind., in 1898, and was about thirty years old. The fort authorities will hold an autopsy, after which an inquest will be held.

MUST SERVE IN CHAIN GANG. White Prisoner's Defiance Results in Ger eral Order in Winchester.

Special to The Washington Post. Winchester, Va., Oct. 17 .- Mayor R. T. Barton to-day issued an order to the city posted notifying them to leave their jailor requiring him to turn over all prisoners confined in jail for misdemeanor to the superintendent of police, to serve out their sentences in the chaingang. This action was taken because of the refusal of a white man to serve in the chain gang, defying the order of court, and setting a precedent which other prisoners announced their intention of following.

The white prisoner successfully evaded the sentence of the court, owing to a ference of opinion among the official to the correct interpretation of the chairsengang law. Mayor Barton settled the matter by issuing the general order requiring all prisoners to serve on the streets until their sentences are completed. the refusal of a white man to

MURDERED FOR MONEY

Two Atrocions Crimes of West Virginia Laborers.

WORKINGMAN SHOT FROM BEHIND

left Campon New Short Line Road with Supposed Friend and Failed to Return-Rody Found Hidden Beneath Leaves, the Pockets Rifled-Posse in Pursuit of Assassin-Two Other Railroad Laborers Murder and Rob Saloonkeeper.

Special to The Washington Post. New Martineville, W. Va., Oct. 21.-This vicinity was the scene of two cold-blooded murders to-day. Both were committed for the purpose of robbery. Early this morn-ing two laborers, Thomas Burke and Frank Ewing, employed on the Short Line Railroad at Porters Falls, started for this city. Ewing's return to camp alone about noon set the others to ques-tioning him, and when he failed to give a straight account of himself, a party started to hunt the missing man. This evening his body was found near the road, two miles from this city, covered with leaves. His pockets were turned inside a hole through his brain. While the search for Burke was going on, Ewing escaped toward Clarksburg. A pesse is in search of him. To-day two Short Line laborers entered Ed Carroll's saloon near Minnie, a small town near the railroad camp, and bought two bottles of beer. They handed Carroll a quarter, and as he turned to put the money away one of them struck him under the ear and the other on top of the head with the beer bottles. They beat him nead with the beer bottles. They beat him till insensible, then robbed his pockets of $60 and a revolver and fled, overlooking $200 in the money drawer. Carroll is dying to-night. There is no clew to the murder-ers, except that they wore red-striped sweaters, a common garment among the railroad laborers.

ALLEGED FORGER'S SCHEME. Checks Cashed by Hotel Boys-One Claims to Be Magistrate Wentworth's Son. Norfolk, Va., Sept. 21.-William Wentsaid to have been operating also in Phila-delphia and Baltimore. Their method was to send a check out by a hotel bellboy, indorsed in several names. The boy usually got the money, but in Norfolk a clothing-house notified the police of the unusual circumstances. It was found that Wentworth, alias A Braun, had a check book on the Colonial Early, had a check book on the Colonial Early of New York. In the main the checks tendered and those filled out and found on the prisoner were for small amounts, the largest being for 25. The police do not believe that Wentworth is a son of the New York magistrate.
